Altice USA Hosts Senator Tom Croci for Conversation on Importance of Veterans Day, Public Service and Leadership

Bethpage, NY - November 22, 2016 - Students at William Floyd High School today took part in Altice Connects "Meet the Leaders at School" program which took place on campus in Mastic Beach, NY. New York Senator Tom Croci participated in the event along with the students from the high school.

In honor of Veterans Day, the program focused on the importance of the holiday, public service and leadership. Senator Croci invited Veteran Joan Furey to join him for a panel moderated by Pat Halpin. The panel focused on the meaning of Veterans Day and included a question and answer session with the students. More than 50 students, staff and guests were in attendance.

"Our veterans and their families have made great sacrifices for this nation and deserve to be recognized for their courage and commitment," said Senator Tom Croci. "It has never been more important to remind our citizens, and especially our young people, of the honor and sacrifice given by our service men and women; and I commend Altice USA for leading that effort here today through their 'Meet the Leaders' program."

"'Meet the Leaders' provides an opportunity for students to meet and engage with community leaders and better understand current issues," said Lee Schroeder, senior vice president, government and public affairs, Altice USA. "Altice Connects is pleased to bring this program to students at William Floyd High so they could hear firsthand from the incredible Veterans who have given so much to protect our country."
